

May 7, 2010

Mother's Day Giveaway – Win an ECOSYSTEM Set!

Aren't they just pretty?

Lately, when I have been asked by my husband what I want for Mother's Day, I have been thinking the same thing over and over: I need to be more organized.

No more taking notes on the nearest scrap of paper while my son is yanking on my pant leg. Only to lose those vital scraps of paper in 2 minutes flat. No more jotting down important appointments on the backs of receipts, only to get quickly swept into the trash. One word: Please.

That is why I was pretty psyched about my new little set of ecosystem books. They come in 4 types – Artist (blank), Author (lined), Architect (grid), and Advisor (calendar). You can also choose the color and size. They current colors they offer are Kiwi, Clementine, Lagoon, Watermelon, and Onyx. Soon to be added: Grape. In addition, all ecosystem books are made from 100-percent post-consumer recycled paper using low-impact processes that are environmentally savvy and responsible

But here is what really sold me – each notebook has a unique ID, which you enter on the ecosystem website when you receive your book. If, per chance, like any mom out there, you get forgetful and lose your book, the finder can go to the website and enter in the code. A lost and found system! If only every stuffed animal had that feature!

And here is the fun news – for Mother's Day, ecosystem is going to give one very lucky reader a set of books! The set includes the large watermelon 12-month weekly planner, a medium clementine author (lined) and a small kiwi artist (blank).

Here's how to enter: Just leave a comment below by midnight, May 13th. If you would like extra entries, each of the following will count as one entry: Like us on Facebook, subscribe to our emails, or tweet this giveaway!

In the meantime, check out the other ecosystem notebooks and like their awesome Facebook page.

Happy Mother's Day!